11.4.3 CU as a body promotes or allows telecommuting or remote working for employees as a matter of policy or standard practice, and/or offer a condensed working week to reduce employee commuting.

Cairo University applies the rules of the government and has a formal policy which allows or promotes telecommuting / remote working for employees.

- 1- The 1st evidence: a press release about "The government approves a "remote work" system for some administrative staff for a period of 6 months."
- 2- The 2nd evidence: a press release about Cairo University is the first Egyptian university to successfully transform into a fifth-generation smart university.
- 3- The 3rd evidence Egypt's national government announced in May 2023 a trial for government employees working from home, but this was for government offices, not specifically the university.
